One Education equips staff with the tools and knowledge to continue meeting the needs of their pupils.

One Education responds to key changes as the sector evolves. We adapt our services to reflect the latest guidance and documentation, such as Keeping Children Safe in Education, the Education Inspection Framework, the SEND Code of Practice, and the Schools White Paper, ensuring schools fulfill all statutory requirements and stay prepared for the future.

Our pupil services draw on leading-edge research, pedagogy and child development theory to enhance the learning experience and support pupils with a diverse set of challenges and needs.

Delivering a wide range of training, termly briefings and conferences, we ensure that practitioners can keep pace with current standards, best practice and industry developments.

What does it enable you to do?

One Education can provide support for a specific need e.g. safeguarding but, equally, schools are turning to One Education for their complete range of products and services. They believe that a key advantage of using One Education is their flexibility. At one extreme this can be supporting the whole school community with all aspects of school management, teaching and learning - from head teachers and senior leaders to school business managers, subject leaders, governors, teachers and support staff.

Alternatively, this can be support for individual teachers needing 'hands on' help with casework, whether this is involving Educational Psychologists, SEND or counseling services.

The range of services they cover is vast – school improvement (self evaluation, performance management, pupil premium reviews), teaching and learning, school business management (payroll, HR, governor support, academisation), welfare services (safeguarding, emotional and trauma support) and SEND, to name just a few. They also offer many courses and conferences, as well as templates and proformas covering many areas.
